REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT

Office of Superintendent of Schools

Bloomfield, N. J.

June 30, 1928.

Board of Education:

Ladies and Gentlemen: The annual report of the Superintendent of Schools is herewith respectfully submitted:

In a community developing as rapidly as is our City, there are always new problems presenting themselves for solution. During the past decade the large yearly increase in the number of school children has presented a problem each year, the solution of which has called for building either new buildings or additions to schools already organized. The year just closed has proved to be no exception to this rule as our school enrollment shows an increase of 509 pupils over the enrollment of last year.

A careful study of the need for increased pupil accommodation led to the conclusion that our greatest need lies in the direction of additional high school facilities. One strong argument for reaching this conclusion came from our inability to comply with the State law, which calls for "A Course in Physical Training" which course must provide for every pupil in the school an average of one half hour each day of instruction and drill in physical training.

With our present high school gymnasium facilities we cannot meet this requirement for all the pupils of high school grade, and with each term bringing added numbers of pupils to this school, the need for additional facilities to meet the statutory requirements becomes a necessity. Then, too, the limit of the seating and classroom accommodations of our present high school building has been reached and with its enrollment increasing in size each year, the need for more room becomes evident from another angle.

The completion of our High School building was suggested in the Annual Report issued last year. It was pointed out that such a move would enable us to make temporary use of some of the newly added rooms when completed, for our eighth grade classes, and to house in the Park School rooms thus made vacant, practically all of the seventh grades now accommodated in the Berkeley, Brookside, Center, Brookdale, Carteret, Fairview and Watsessing Schools. Such a plan would make available in each of the schools enumerated above, rooms that could be used for the increasing number of pupils entering each year the kindergarten and the six succeeding grades. This change would also enable us to return to our original idea of an organization in keeping with the modern Junior High School plan. Although the seventh and eighth grades would be housed in separate buildings, the work could be conveniently conducted under the leadership of one principal and one faculty, thus presenting a fine opportunity for building up an organization which will be ready to take full advantage of the new Junior High School building that the Board of Education sees in the offing.

Soon after it was decided that the completion of the High School building should be the next objective of the Board along building lines, the architect began work on the plans and specifications and on May seventh bids for the work of construction were opened. A little later the contracts were awarded and the work of construction is now well under way.

It is believed that the work of the year as carried on in all the departments in presenting the various phases of school work has been prosecuted with care, diligence and vigor and that the efforts made have, in the main, been crowned with success. The teachers who have acted as the guides, counselors and leaders of the young people under their care have worked with sincere devotion for the development of the welfare of their wards. The children for whom the schools exist have with few exceptions shown their appreciation of the untiring efforts of the teachers by giving a hearty, wholesouled response. It is felt that the result of this fine cooperation between teachers and pupils has resulted in a wholesome influence on the lives of the children. Character has been developed as well as proper attitudes toward many of life's problems. Progress has thus been made in laying a solid foundation for the quality of citizenship expected when the boys and girls of today bloom forth into the young manhood and young womanhood of tomorrow. As a result of the year's work these young people know better how to make use of their school opportunities and how to live unselfish and efficient lives. In short, they have stepped up one more round on the ladder of preparation that is fitting each one of them for the task just ahead.

The State wide results of the eight grade examinations given in January as reported to us by the Commissioner of

Group of Students from the Foreign Classes on the Americanization Trip to Washington, February 24 and 25, 1928

Education gave us an opportunity to compare the work of our pupils with that of three different eighth grade groups as shown in the following table:

Our large increase in enrollment has naturally been accompanied by an increase in attendance. For the first time in the history of our schools the day school attendance including the quarantines, has gone beyond the one million mark, the total being 1,003,123½ days.

The increased enrollment has also added to the work of the attendance officer. The percentage of pupils who are lax in attendance under normal conditions remains about the same from year to year. However, this year has been one of epidemics of contagious diseases of children. Mumps and measles have been much in evidence. In some cases the disease is present in such a light form that the need of a doctor's care is not felt by the parents. These parents do not always realize that even though their children are not seriously ill they are doing their full share in spreading the disease and that the sickness as soon as discovered should be reported to the Board of Health. As a result children are frequently absent from school, who undoubtedly should be, but for whom the principal of the school has received no notice of quarantine from the health officer. These absences are naturally reported to the attendance officer who often is the first public official to know that a contagious disease exists in the home. In many cases, the parents are not familiar with the quarantine regulations and consider it, even find it, a hardship to secure a doctor's certificate for the return of their children to school, even when they are informed by the attendance officer that this certificate may be secured from the school doctor without charge. When both parents are working during the day, the securing of the necessary certificate is frequently postponed and the child kept out of school much longer than is necessary. Cases of this type absorb much of the time of the attendance officer before he succeeds in getting the child back in school. A statistical report submitted by the attendance officer follows:

The enrollments for the Evening School and the Summer School each show an increase over the enrollments of last year. In all departments of the former school the work accomplished reflected credit on teachers and pupils. In the Americanization classes enthusiasm ran high and fine results were accomplished. The generosity of a few of our citizens enabled us to send representatives from these classes on a trip to Washington, where much first hand information concerning our system of government was obtained and reported back to the classes.

About the usual percentage of pupils attending the Summer Schools succeeded in removing conditions and thus securing promotions which otherwise could not have been granted them.

The report of the health and nutrition worker shows work done paralleling, in the main, the work covered last year. This similarity of procedure enables us to select a few items which lend themselves well as a basis for comparison. Extracts from the report follow:

"Nutrition work has been carried on in much the same way as heretofore. Complete physical examinations were given and individual work was done with a number of malnourished children who were not enrolled in nutrition classes. The result was the correction of numerous physical defects.

"Most helpful has been the cooperation of the Red Cross. The service of the clinic held each Monday afternoon at the Community House for preschool children was freely offered for physical examinations. The doctor in charge gave the examinations and was most helpful in every way even going to a school when it was inconvenient to take children to the clinic. The Red Cross Nurses have assisted in taking children to clinics, have given valuable advice and have been in every way most helpful to the nutrition work.

"The League for Friendly Service, as always, has investigated conditions in homes where it seemed wise for someone outside of the school to make a survey; has given aid, not only in advising but more materially, in the form of supplying milk, nourishing food, and clothing, and in finding employment for unemployed members of families where lack of income was causing malnutrition. It is due to this organization that the nutrition work was initiated in the Bloomfield Schools. The League first employed the nutrition worker, introduced the sale of milk, and has for eight years been closely associated with the health work, encouraging it in every way.

"The results of nutrition work are not always seen at once. An example of what can be accomplished with time and cooperation is shown in the following:

"Peter, an Italian lad, was underweight and malnourished. He was placed in a nutrition class where he carried out all of the instructions given. A complete physical examination was given him by the school doctor who found a suspicious lung condition and ordered further examination. He was taken to the tuberculosis clinic, held by the Red Cross, and again examined by a lung specialist and his chest X-rayed. The X-ray showed a healed lesion. Other members of the family were examined. Vincie, a younger sister, had been in the hospital with pneumonia and empyema three months before and was also malnourished. Arrangements were made by the Red Cross to have the two children admitted to the preventorium at Farmingdale. They entered this institution in July, 1927, and remained there until March, 1928, returning to Bloomfield well nourished, above normal weight and very much improved in health.

"A decided gain this year resulted from the cooperation of the physical training department. A track meet was scheduled for May, and pupils in all schools were warned that if they were more than seven per cent underweight they could not compete in the events. This acted as an incentive for both boys and girls to get in training and reach as nearly as possible a normal weight. The improvement in some was quite remarkable with only a two months' notice. If this practice is continued each year and notice to that effect announced at the opening of the fall term, there will undoubtedly be a marked gain.

"The eradication of malnutrition in children cannot be accomplished in a short time. The number of poorly nourished children in our schools will never be permanently reduced until we can give children proper care from the beginning; prenatal, infant, preschool and school age. Obviously the public school must be the agent to attack the nutrition problem if any amount of success is to be gained. The school has the children, can observe, encourage, and aid day after day for at least eight years of a child's life, and can thus hope eventually to bring all children into the ranks of the well nourished. The school should have a health view point, understand the dangers which surround the child, such as hurried and inadequate meals, the candy habit, late hours, over stimulation and over exercise, and remove as far as possible obstacles in the way of the child's health."

The Bloomfield Schools are fortunate in having many of the facilities for carrying on a progressive health program—a school physician, nurses, dentist, trained teachers and a physical training department.

The Medical Inspection and Dental Clinic departments have each completed a busy year. The contagions of children's diseases which swept through the City during the spring not only kept the doctor and nurses busy but they made great inroads on our attendance as well.

Teeth needing immediate attention have fully occupied the time of the dental department, and the year ended before all cases of this type could be given attention. Consequently, the new school year will open with a considerable volume of unfinished work in sight. However, it is expected that by the end of the coming year the work of this department will be well in hand. Statistical summaries of the work done in these two departments will appear elsewhere.

The report of the physician in charge of the Shick Testing shows that this work was begun November 1, 1927, and completed December 22, 1927. Thirty-eight percent of the children in the elementary grades were tested and immunized, so that there are now nearly 2,000 children in the City who will not contract diphtheria. The parents of about 3,000 of the children did not express a desire to have their children receive the test.

The tabulated report of the doctor follows:

In the observation of Safety Week, we again had the helpful cooperation of the Home and School Associations, the Lions Club, the Kiwanis Club, the Police Department and the Mayor and Town Council. Although Safety work is a part of our regular curriculum throughout the year, it emphasizes its importance to have the subject presented by people from the outside.

A canvass of the use made by the teachers of the pedagogical libraries located in each elementary school building, indicates that the books are widely used. The number of books in each library averages about one hundred thirty and they cover quite completely the entire field of elementary education. It will be readily seen that these books are very helpful in keeping the teachers informed concerning up to date educational practices and in solving the many classroom problems with which teachers come in contact. The table which follows shows not only the use made of the books by the teachers of each school, but also the number of teachers who have been improving themselves by taking extension and university courses.

For several years past the practical side of our thrift work has been well cared for by one of our local banks. A review of the year's accomplishment compiled by the vice-president of the bank in charge follows:

"Saving money is a matter of self-discipline. After a period of seven years' operation of the School Savings in Bloomfield Schools we can see the advantages which accrue to the students through this plan.

"Many systems have been conceived since 1921, the year the School Savings was started in Bloomfield. Many of them have for their object the accumulation of large sums of money by the pupils and a number of elaborate plans have been inaugurated to make the accumulation of money the principal object of the School Savings.

"Our conception of School Savings is to teach the pupil to put aside for future use part of what he has. This future use may be for his college education, the acquiring of something which will bring happiness to him or his family, but the fundamental fact is teaching the principle that the accumulation of funds for future use is the meaning of true thrift.

"A number of towns in our immediate neighborhood have recently taken up the School Savings plan. In a few of them there has been unfavorable reaction on the part of the teachers whose time is already crowded with many duties.

"It would seem that the plan that involves the least teacher supervision is the most advantageous from the school authorities' standpoint. No school savings plan is successful, however, unless it has the hearty support of the Superintendent, Principal and Teachers throughout the entire system.

"Just how far the teachers must participate in the actual operation of the School Savings System is the problem of each individual town. In some the teachers do nearly all the work. In some the student, under the teacher's supervision, does the work. In others, as in Bloomfield, the plan is maintained with teacher encouragement but the actual operation is done by the pupil.

"In appraising the real value of a School Savings system we must not lose sight of the fact that by the pupils participating the 'mystery' is taken out of banking and anyone in a position to know would be willing to testify that the children in the schools today know more about banks and banking than we of the generation past did during our school days.

"The bank in itself is a clearing house for financial education, assistance and advice and the School linked with the bank can do its part in educating in an economic sense those who will be the citizens of tomorrow."

We are pleased to report that the librarian of the Public Library informs us that pupils from all grades have been making a more extended use of that institution than they did last year. This is especially true in the case of the smaller children who have had special facilities provided for them.

The Home and School Council has held its regular scheduled meetings at which there have been interesting debates of various matters connected with school work.

During the year about one thousand dollars have been added to the college benefit fund.

Two new Home and School Associations have been organized, one at the No. 7—Carteret School and one at the No. 5—Brookdale School. These organizations are made up of parents who are greatly interested in the study of school problems and the welfare of the teachers and pupils. During the Spring the Berkeley and the Fairview Associations each gave a picnic to the children of their respective schools. These occasions were greatly enjoyed by the boys and girls.

An event of great interest to all the elementary school pupils was held during the month of May. This event was known as the Athletic Meet of the Elementary Schools. This meet was preceded by school tryouts at each building, the winners of each event in each classification being selected to represent his or her school in the event he or she won. Practically all the pupils in grades four to eight inclusive took part in the tryout.

The arrangement and management of this affair reflected no small amount of credit upon the Supervisor and teachers in charge of it.

The usual number of gifts and prizes awarded for scholarship, extra-curricular activities, etc., have been received and awarded. Our appreciation and thanks are extended to the donors.

Dental Clinic Report

The children of five schools were examined and classified at the beginning of the year. All those whose parents signified a willingness to have the children taken care of at the clinic were attended to and their mouths were restored to good condition. Children from the schools not examined were taken care of in the order in which they came.

The following shows the classification used:

Class "A" Those whose mouths were in such a condition as to be considered retarding the general health and school work.

Class "B" Those whose teeth were in need of fillings.

Class "C" Those whose teeth were in a good condition.

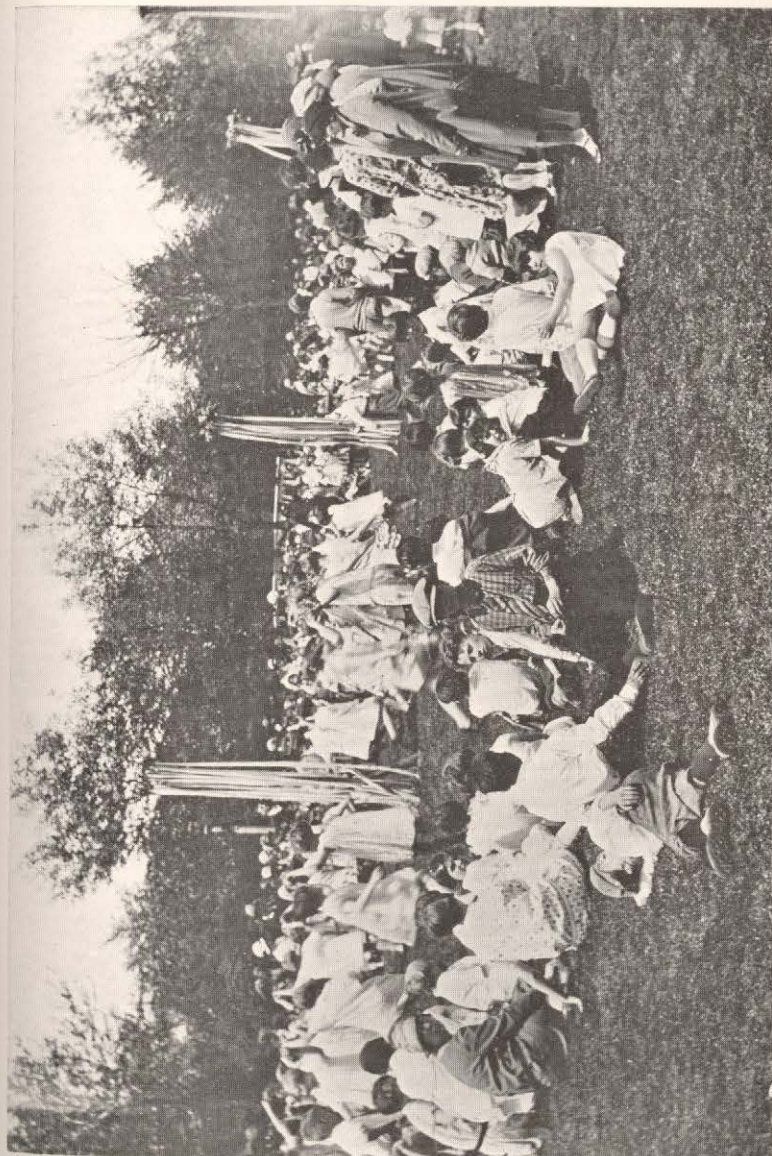

Of the 1937 children examined 13 per cent were found to be in Class A. Notification of this condition was sent to the parents and approximately 58 per cent promised to send the children to their own dentist. The remaining 42 per cent were treated at the school clinic and instructed as to the care of their mouths.

There were 23 per cent Classified as B. Notification was also sent to the parents of these children and 76 per cent promised to have the work done by their own dentist, the remaining 24 per cent being treated at the school clinic.

To accomplish the above, the following work was done at the clinic:

Teeth extracted.....	314
